Translation note

This English version is a working translation prepared from OCR and visual inspection of the supplied scan. The source scan has degraded/garbled text in several places. The translation preserves the legible promises, headings and figures as closely as possible. Where OCR makes a figure or phrase uncertain, it is marked [unclear in source scan] rather than silently guessed. This is not an official BJP English publication.

Source handling: Original Hindi PDF remains the authoritative source. Source page references below refer to the printed page numbers where visible; the PDF cover and introductory pages are also identified.

1. Cover and introductory messages

The message says that five years earlier Uttar Pradesh faced problems including lawlessness, corruption, discrimination in recruitment, insecurity for women and girls, and neglect of places of faith. The party says it resolved to address these problems and put the state on a path of development.

It lists electricity, water, housing, ration, education and health as basic services strengthened during the previous five years. It cites farm-loan waivers, government procurement at minimum support prices, construction of 33 new medical colleges, expressways and international airports, financial support for workers, and Anti-Romeo Squads as examples of work undertaken.

The message presents the 2022 document as the party’s vision for the next five years and asks voters to return the BJP to government.

The message invokes the principle “Sabka Saath, Sabka Vikas, Sabka Vishwas” and says the party sought public input through the “UP Number 1 — Your Suggestions, Our Resolve” campaign. It describes video vans, suggestion boxes, a missed-call number, outreach by party workers and meetings with farmers, workers, traders and self-help groups.

It says the manifesto is a collective vision for the state’s future, not merely an election document.

Message from manifesto committee chair Suresh Kumar Khanna (source PDF page 5)

The message claims that Uttar Pradesh had become the country’s second-largest state economy and that more than 95% of the previous manifesto’s commitments had been fulfilled. It says suggestions were collected from people across all 403 Assembly constituencies, reaching more than four crore people through outreach, calls, meetings, conferences and social media.

4. Important translation and verification notes

The source document is a scanned Hindi PDF. OCR is imperfect, particularly in the comparison graphic and a few dense columns. This translation therefore preserves readable commitments but does not claim every word is a certified, line-by-line rendering. Some OCR-damaged figures or names are explicitly marked as unclear or require checking against the page image.

The manifesto mixes retrospective claims (what the party says it achieved before the election) with forward-looking commitments (what it promises to do in the next five years). They have been kept separate above. The claims are attributed to the manifesto and have not been independently fact-checked.
